It's summertime and the livin' is easy - but staying cool can be hard on your wallet. Save energy, and some cash, with these tips:

- * Use your microwave. It not only takes two-thirds less energy than your stove, it won't heat up the kitchen.
- * Keep your refrigerator and freezer full. This helps keep them from warming up too fast when you open them, and they don't have to work as hard to stay cool. Use pitchers of water and bags of ice to fill up the space.
- * Take a page from yesteryear: Prior to the time of widespread home air conditioning, people went to the movies and kids ran through the sprinkler.
- * Any time you are away, turn up the thermostat on the air conditioner. According to the Edison Electric Institute, a trade group, you save 1 to 2 percent on your electric bill per degree setting.
